Fireworks safety essential to holiday celebrations on, off base

Submitted by 15th Airlift Wing Safety Office

As our nation celebrates its 233rd Birthday, the 15th Airlift Wing encourages everyone to take time to plan for a fun and safe holiday. Parades, cookouts and fireworks help us celebrate the summer season, especially the Fourth of July. However, joyful celebrations turn into painful memories when fireworks are misused.

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), approximately 10,000 people were treated in hospital emergency rooms for mishaps associated with fireworks in 2007. More than half the injuries were burns and most involved the hands, eyes, and legs. Children 10 to 14 years old had the highest per capita injury rate among all age groups.

Commercial fireworks are dangerous and can pose serious risks to our military members, their families, and property. For that reason, the 15th Airlift Wing Weapons Safety Manager conducted a comprehensive risk assessment for the fireworks show at Foster's Point on July 4th. The assessment included review of delivery, transportation, set-up, and deployment of fireworks along with severe weather precautions and adherence to personnel safe clearance zones.

The use of consumer fireworks on Hickam AFB and Bellows AFS is strictly prohibited — examples include skyrockets, bottle rockets, missile type rockets, helicopter/aerial spinners, Roman candles, firecrackers, chasers, and handheld sparklers. Party poppers and snappers are permissible. These items should only be used under adult supervision with safe clearances from combustibles.

For members who reside off-base, it is important to observe the laws and regulations of the State of Hawaii and City and County of Honolulu; ignorance is no excuse.

Regardless of how you will be celebrating, keep these safety measures in mind:

- In case of emergency call 911 immediately.
- Know and observe local laws.
- Maintain safe distances from fireworks displays.
- Consumer fireworks are illegal on beaches in Hawaii.
- Never let young children play with fire-works. Sparklers, considered by many the ideal "safe" firework for the young, burn at very high temperatures and can easily ignite clothing. Young children do not understand the dangers involved and cannot act appropriately in case of emergency.

- Older children should only be permitted to use fireworks under close adult supervision. Do not allow any running or horse-play.

- Light fireworks outdoors in a clear area away from houses, dry leaves or grass and flammable materials.

- Keep a bucket of water or garden hose nearby for emergencies and for dowsing fireworks that do not ignite.

- Do not try to relight or handle malfunctioning fireworks. Soak them with water and dispose of them properly.

- Never ignite fireworks in a container, especially a glass or metal container.

- Never have any portion of your body directly over a firework while lighting.

- Do not experiment with homemade fireworks.

WARRIOR of the week

by Chris Aguinaldo
Hickam Kukini editor

HICKAM AIR FORCE BASE — Team Hickam's Warrior of the Week fondly remembers traveling around the world with his father, now a retired Air Force Senior Master Sergeant. As he continues his family's legacy, Senior Airman James Watts, a Maintenance Squadron non destructive inspections journeyman, is already on his way to his own distinguished career.

15 MXS Commander Maj. Katherine Lilly comments our Warrior is "an example of what an impact one Airman can make and I am very proud that he is a part of the Maintenance Squadron."

"He stepped up and ran the section during a critical shortage, not to mention that he is the lead technician who resolves the maintenance data system technical problems for the section," she continued.

Airman Watts, from Richmond, Ga., has been in the service for three years, with most of that time here at Hickam AFB.

He said he enlisted to take advantage of the educational opportunities — later realizing "it was because I was heading in the wrong directions in life and needed stability, structure, discipline and training to become a better person and worker to secure my future."

"The Air Force has taught me to use my emotions, brain power and strengths to my advantage rather than my disadvantage. I am more patient, well spoken, open, and caring. I feel like I have a purpose."

He's learned that "everyone has the ability to teach a lesson or help you learn something whether they realize it or not. I like being able to talk to all the different kinds of people and understand how to or not to do things."

He adds it's critical to have an "understanding of the nature of our jobs and how important we all are in the defense of our country."

"I hear a lot of Airmen speaking about self worth in their career fields, as if their job doesn't matter because they push paper or file things when other Airmen are on convoys or in the combat zone," he observed. "Everyone should understand how important they are and we are all just a link in one giant chain."

Maj. Lilly adds Airman Watts' dedication goes beyond his normal duties. "He is the Public Relations Officer for the Hickam Airmen's Council (HAC). He continually briefs each FTAC class on the HAC as well as many other organizations, education opportunities and where to seek guidance if needed."

"He has also been selected as the Maintenance Group POC for the 15 AW's Operation HELE ON, which allows children of deployed parents to go through some basic training and deployment procedures for better understanding and morale building," Maj. Lilly continued. "In a little over two and a half years in the Air Force, Senior Airman Watts continues to go above and beyond not only within the squadron and the group, but also within the Wing."

Airman Leadership School announces its new graduates

by Senior Master Sergeant Vanessa A. Smallsbryant
Airman Leadership School Commandant

The Hickam Professional Military Education Center hosted the graduation banquet for Airman Leadership School Class 09-C on Wednesday, July 1. More than 280 guests were treated to an entertaining evening highlighted by guest speaker Chief Master Sgt. Rudy Lopez, interim Command Chief Master Sergeant, 15th Airlift Wing and Superintendent, 15th Medical Group.

Senior Airman Bobby B. Johnson, from the 8th Intelligence Squadron, garnered top honors as the John L. Levitow Award recipient. Staff Sgt. Joseph P. Luera, from the 25th Air Support Operations Squadron, earned the Leadership Award. Senior Airman Daniel R. Van Eaton, from the 15th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, earned both the Academic Achievement Award and the Distinguished Graduate Award.

Other Distinguished Graduates included, Staff Sgt. Nicole T. Harbin, from 324th Intelligence Squadron, Senior Airman Jeremy M. Christie, from the 34th Intelligence Squadron, and Senior Airman Robert M. Wolf, from the 15th Maintenance Operations Squadron.

The Airman Leadership School (ALS) is an Air Force educational program implemented at the base level that prepares senior airmen for positions of greater responsibility. It provides many of the leadership skills required of supervisors and reporting officials throughout the Air Force. ALS enhances the development of senior airmen by strengthening their ability to lead, follow, and manage while they gain a broader understanding of the military profession. The course consists of three curriculum areas: Profession of Arms, Leadership and Communication Skills. The lessons in the curriculum areas are distributed throughout the four graduate attributes: Military Professional, Combat Leader, Supervisor of Airmen, and the Supervisory Communicator.

During the 5-week course, students also performed weekly reveille/retreat formations, uniform inspections and participated in weekly Fit-to-Fight activities. In addition to maintaining ALS’ rigorous academic demands, students of Class 09-C volunteered time sorting clothes and other miscellaneous items at the Airmen’s Attic. The class also helped with registration, set-up/tear-down, and road guard duty during the third annual Sexual Assault and Prevention Response fun run/walk. Their efforts helped raise approximately $800.00 in funds which was donated to the Kapolei Sex Abuse Treatment Center.

Upon graduation from ALS, each student receives ten semester hours of college credit from the Community College of the Air Force. Graduation from ALS completes the first of four levels of Air Force professional military education. The graduates of ALS Class 09-C are:

Team Hickam History

The Air Force’s most historic airfield

July 4, 1898 — Major General Francis Greene from the “Thomas” (part of the Philippine Expeditionary Force) raises the American flag on Wake Island.

July 4, 1960 — The first official raising of the 50-star flag of the United States, symbolic of Hawaii’s admission into the Union, is accompanied by impressive ceremonies at Iolani Palace in Honolulu. The Hawaii Statehood Celebration Committee coordinated participation of local organizations and military services, and the PACAF-BASECOM Director of Information represented the Air Force on the committee. Each military service selected two Island-born enlisted men of different racial descent to assist in lowering the 49-star flag and raising the 50-star flag. The two Air Force participants were A1C David Mendez and A1C Wendell Won from the 6486th Air Police Squadron, of Puerto Rican and Chinese descent, respectively.

July 5, 1970 — The first C-5A aircraft arrives at Hickam AFB, Hawaii.

July 6, 1937 — Colonel M. F. Harmon and 1st Lt. Robert Warren make an inspection of Hickam Field, prior to occupying it. They landed with a P-12. Satisfied with that visit, plans went forward for the eventual transfer of other units to Hickam. The commanding general of the 18th Wing issued an order assigning the Headquarters, 18th Wing, Air Corps, to Hickam Field.

July 8, 1957 — The 15th Consolidated Maintenance Squadron (predecessor to the 15th Maintenance Squadron) activates at Niagara Falls Municipal Airport, NY.
